KUNGER + HAUSER OEG

A brilliant production of Francisco Barbieri's Spanish zarzuela El Barberillo de Lavapiés (The Little Barber of Lavapiés) premiered on 13 De-

The premiere of Francisco Barbieri's zarzuela sparkles at the Kammeroper

at Vienna's Kammeroper. All elements of this rare jewel of a production, from José Fabra's vibrant conducting of Barbieri's musically effervescent score to Lutz E. Seelig's clever directing and Ferdinando Chefalo's charming choreography, along with the attractive set and beautiful costumes and lighting, combine to create a winner.

The wonderfully cast Spanish singers, led by baritone Alfredo Garcia as the picaresque, busybody barber Lamparilla and soprano Silvia Vasquez as his seamstress innamorata Paloma, romp vocally and dramatically throughout with vivacious Latin abandon.

Zarzuelas, which originated in the 17th century and surged in popularity in the 19th, are to the Spanish-speaking world what operettas by Gilbert & Sullivan or Johann Strauss are to English and German speakers, respectively. Hundreds of the thousands of zarzuelas that have been composed over the years still remain in the repertoire and have recently had more exposure outside Spain and Latin America. Themes are typically inspired by bourgeois life, romance, and politics, liberally laced with popular Spanish humor and vitality.

El Barberillo de Lavapiés, written about the same time as Bizet's Carmen, is a story of love and political intrigue, and the happy ending makes it a perfect choice for this holiday season's entertainment. (EPG)
